Why Shop High Point?

High Point, North Carolina, although a small town in the gently rolling foothills, it is a huge player in the world of furniture and home décor. Each spring and fall, this Center of the Design Universe welcomes over 75,000 furnishings industry professionals to shop North America's largest – and the world's longest-running – furniture market. Though the Market is open to the trade only, you can discover what these professionals have found and shop many of High Point's major exhibitors during other weeks of the year.

Why Shop High Point? Here are a few tips to help you answer that question:

See it. Sit On It. During a trip to High Point, you are able to not only explore the very latest in home furnishings but to explore first hand the commercial showrooms and manufacturing floors of hundreds of furnishings and accessory brands. In this the capital of the furniture world, you can easily check out the size, shape, comfort or scale of each piece you are looking to include in your design plan. This experience is not possible with online buying or leafing through retailers' catalogs. Shop the one place where the greatest selection of furnishings is within reach.

It's An Investment. Make it Count. A major design update or complete re-dressing of your home can be a considerable investment. Being able to make informed and cost-efficient selections directly with those crafting your furnishings will make for a sure investment. With each piece chosen for your home's interiors or exteriors, options are seemingly unlimited with costs equally daunting. In High Point, making the right selections can save you time and money.

One-Stop School of Design. With so much available in one place, a High Point visit is guaranteed to personally educate you on every element of style, budget and design trends. An education like this is hard to acquire through online resources. A trip to High Point and to the very place furnishings are created allows you to educate yourself on every facet of each piece of furnishings, lighting or accessories. You won't want to miss a class.

Choose A Professional At The Point. From Baker Furniture to Aspen Home, Elite Leather to Tomlinson, access to hundreds of fine furnishings showrooms is available at only one place in the world: High Point. Relying on a local professional designer will not only create openings to these showrooms but also provide the highest quality interior design planning to match your tastes and your budget. With personal relationships with all the manufacturers, your home will benefit from the use of a High Point design firm. Look to them for the inside scoop on price, style and the latest trends. They can offer expert interior design knowledge, assistance with the buying process and coordination of the shipment of your purchases back home. The selection of the correct design firm can be your ticket to High Point.

Why Shop High Point? It is the must-visit destination to make your house a home.
